Tuition Assistance

Students are admitted into NYSSSA on a need-blind basis, ensuring that NYSSSA is representative of New York's wide spectrum of economic, cultural, ethnic, and social diversity.

Visual Arts

SUNY Fredonia

79 students were chosen through portfolio reviews to work in 2D and 3D arts including drawing and painting; metal, clay, wood, and mixed media sculpture; textiles mixed media; figure studies; and printmaking.

Students learn from 14 full-time faculty while also attending presentations by and workshops with guest artists from around the country.

Selected works are archived as part of the NYSSSA permanent collection and can be viewed throughout the State in various Agency Buildings.

Media Arts

SUNY Alfred

27 students were accepted to study photography, film, video, sound art, and computer animation.

Students have access to state-of-the-art equipment while studying media fundamentals, aesthetics, and receiving instruction in new techniques and processes.

Through nightly guest lectures, contemporary work viewings, and film screenings, students are taught how to analyze and discuss art and the artistic process, including their own processes.

Choral Studies

SUNY Fredonia

46 students participated in SCS, attending classes in musicianship, music history, opera, musical theatre, and stage presence.

Each student learns repertory as a member of the Full Choir, Mens/Womens Choir, and Small Ensemble.

Students attend concerts, get backstage passes to opera dress rehearsals, and perform at the Chautauqua Institute.

Theatre

SUNY Delhi

28 students participate in intensive, pre-professional training, taking daily classes in acting, movement, voice, and scene study.

Students also study other theater disciplines such as stage combat, comedy and impulse improvisation, mask, and playwriting.

Students interact with both emerging and established artists through new work readings, performances, and workshops.

Modern Dance

Skidmore College

24 students were selected to participate based on their technical and creative potential to study with a range of professional dancers and choreographers.

Dancers take daily classes in technique, conditioning, and repertory.

Program works in partnership with the American Dance Legacy Institute and the associated dance company.

Ballet

Skidmore College

57 students trained with NYSSSA Ballet faculty and New York City Ballet (NYCB) dancers.

Students attend nightly NYCB performances at SPAC, providing them with the opportunity to watch their teachers perform.

Students take technique, pointe, character, jazz, pas de deux, and elements of physical therapy classes. When not dancing, they study the history of ballet and dance.

Orchestral Studies

Skidmore College

77 students were selected for 2017. Students performed in the full orchestra, wind and string ensembles, and small chamber ensembles.

NYSSSA musicians are coached by Philadelphia Orchestra members. In addition to extensive rehearsals, students take classes in musicianship, theory, and music history.

Students perform nightly at the SPAC Gazebo prior to Philadelphia Orchestra performances.

A Letter of Support

After the program ended, we received numerous letters and emails from students, parents, and even community members who came to performances in support of the New York State School of the Arts. This is one of many.

Dear Ms. Hennighausen,

This letter is to express how the Summer School of the Arts program impacted my child.

Since the final presentations in Delhi, I have been witness to two gatherings of students from this class. They gathered once on Long Island and a second time in Albany. It was as if I had a front row view for a "Glee" show. I observed and heard monologues, singing of Broadway tunes, solos, improv, and scene acting.

How lucky these kids are to have had an opportunity to attend such a program. The teachers taught and challenged them every day. The program may have ended but the kids are continuing to practice what they learned.

State support of such a program is crucial to the development of our artistic young adults. It provides the secure and supportive platform for these students to evolve their skills.

I have been blessed to continue to hear their voices as I drive them around New York State. Thank you.
